FROM THE FRONT.

LONDON, July 24.—Up to 1100 hour no news has been received of any engagement at the seat of war. Prussian columns are crossing in the Canton and Haute Sarre in consequence of the opening of road for the French forces.

The Queen of Prussia, on leaving the Rhine provinces, issued an affectionate address to the inhabitants. She says she has left the Rhine provinces with the greatest reluctance, but she is confident that the people will not forget their affection and devotion for their Queen, and believes that the world will not long stay, but correct misrepresentations. The administration is in the voice of God. She has confidence in the justice of her cause, and blessings which have followed them, for half a century, warrant the greatest trust in the future.

A FRENCH DEPARTMENT OF MOSELLE, July 24.—The Prussians have been repulsed at Carden. A Prussian force was in Pronne and had been made to French troops.

The French Government hastens in admitting a number of volunteers composed of young men and sharpens the order up to 1,000, so regret being kept from the front.

A letter, dated Coblenz, 22d, says the Prussian force, from Saarlouis, crossed into the French border, fraternity, to make a reconnoissance to the extent of two miles. Their object was to ascertain the number, character, they encountered the resistance of the enemy, and after a short fight with a force of French chasseurs. The Prussians retired, leaving twelve on the field. It is believed the French lost a greater number.

It is stated that the Prussians are strengthened Coblenz, only with the intention of making it the base of operations, and that the army is to move down the line of Saar, and carry an offensive war into France.

PRUSSIA.

BERLIN via LONDON, July 24.—The only communication which France had received from France since the beginning of the quarrel, reached Berlin, on the 22d, in the shape of the declaration of war. It declares that the Emperor of the French is obliged to consider the presence of Prussian troops on the frontier of the Rhine of Spain as an attack on the security of France, and he declares himself in consequence in a state of war. This France had never committed any aggression. This France declared to the Cabinet of Berlin, and was obeyed by circumstances, and the Emperor says he is forced to consider the Prussian Government as openly declaring war against France, and announces operations and particularly as to a protected moral significance. The Prussian Government has replied formally to the contents of Monday, giving an account of the refusal to receive the French Ambassador. The Government has received from all parts of Prussia, Germany, addresses, in writing, urging on the defense of honor and injured interests, and leaving all to the Government and the King. The Government, in reply, declares itself at war with France.
